yelled into a wind tunnel, and you're standing behind me,

the time, for go You think it's better I am so with space in between didn't have or yell I wanted wrestle yell I still yell puff my cheeks and down house we built to remember your brain who are you who all the houses they must this is never knew you real you and I saw or wanted anything from the thing to hold Maybe something taken happened you alien now blue forgotten me are now green l I wish this different wrestled that I'd moved thought felt or different or stupid moved But screws tighter heavy heav on chest not true the knot still there be in the pool the can't believe falls let it bury me in waves like is is different now This like taking my breath than holds it for stifling When you walk crisp catches second Instead of throat closed and feeling clawing from grasping clasping out you're trapped You've me I know pain that this think about I hope that that what you you have forgotten because the inside of you big to see else the idea you have knowingly to me much to bare I don't know what things made together How live inside things anymore What once made me that forming me else What are those Can they be those even now now don't like think about essential though they shaping pivotal I have lost your face No still see me maybe you didn't want day I gave this SO go Back in box fucked up now never told me How can I I think I do. long you

```
Τ
                                                    You
                                             go
wrestle
             - 1
                         yell I still
                                          yell
                                                              my cheeks
                                                                    remember
                                   to
all the houses
                                                                  you who
                                               your brain who
                    this is
                              real
     you
                                                       to hold
wanted
                             the thing
something
              taken
                                                                 forgotten
           alien
   now
                                  now
I wish this was wrestled
                                                                   moved
                                     different or
                   felt
                                                                    moved
     But
                             tighter
                                              heavy
not true
                       still there
                                                    in the
falls
        let bury me
                                                            like
now This
                 is
                                        taking
                                                 breath
         When you
                                                          hold it
                                            catch
              Instead of feeling
                                                        closed
                                                                  trapped
             clasping
                                               out
                   I know
                                                this
              I hope
                                                             you have
forgotten
                                        you
                                                               see
                                          know
                                 you
              I don't know
                                             things
                                 anymore
                    me
                                           me
                                                                        are
those even
                                                         now
                                                                    now
           think about
                                                  the
                                                              essential
                    I have lost your face No
                                                             see
                                         you didn't
                              me
               now
                              go
                  never told me How can I
                                               you I I.
```

reminded,

1 wrestle - 1 yell remember all the houses this is real the thing taken forgotten now I wish this was different felt different But still there let bury taking breath hold it clasping out have forgotten things

I have lost your face No

never told me .

even

now

in bones,
1
	real
this
	there
	clasp
	oldop
forgot
		now
	I have lost your face No Thave lost your race Two never

and skin.

I have lost your face